1. [REDACTED]
a meeting of Cuban and Venezuelan revolutionaries who plan to renew their efforts against the Trujillo regime was scheduled to take place in the United States in mid-October. Colonel Fabio Ruiz, until recently head of the National Police, was one of the many prominent persons slated to attend the meeting.
2. Most of the aircraft and arms of the revolutionaries are in the name of Juan Rodriguez or the Comite Pro-Democracia Dominicana. The latter organization contains several Cuban congressmen.
3. Arms seized from revolutionary troops are being held at Camp Colombia, Cuba. Those confiscated at the finca of Minister Jose Aleman have been returned there. It is considered possible that President Grau may issue a decree of amnesty, in which case all property will be returned to the owners, possibly on condition that it be removed from Cuba.
4. Manolo Castro, now awaiting United States Federal Court action in Florida, may end up as head of the revolutionary organization, with Rolando Masferrer in charge of troops. Jose Aleman, now Minister Without Portfolio, will be connected with the movement, but will not play as active a part as in the first attempt.
